EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

The fashionable time for a wedding is from twelve o'clock to half past four in the afternoon.

MISS R. Place cards are most always a necessity; they may be very simple. For an affair given for the bride and groom, they may be marked with their initials combined in gold or silver.

MISS MAXFIELD. When there has been a betrothal in the family within a year it is still proper for the bride to proceed with a church wedding, this should be followed by a very small reception afterwards, to the family and close friends. The bride's position, under the circumstances, will be understood.

COMPANY G DRILLS AT THE MAXFIELD FARM

Fifty-four members of Company G of the 12th Regiment, W. S. G. took part in an out door drill yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a camp supper at six. The company traveled by motor to the Alvin Maxfield farm on the Evansville road and drilled in a large pasture three-quarters of a mile from the road near the "Three Mile Creek."

At six the fireless cookers were opened and the meat prepared by Quartermaster Sergeant Hagen and was enjoyed. Mr. Maxfield was on hand with huge cans of delicious milk and brought from his home a wonderful assortment of strawberries upon quarts of strawberries with rich cream as a desert. Drilling took up the afternoon and early evening hours despite the heat and later a chicken feast was held under the direction of First Sergeant Schwieger, who easily carried off the honors. The party returned to the city about eight by auto.

The drill yesterday was the second Sunday drill which the local company has had and no doubt more will be held before the company goes into camp in July. Practically every state in the Union is in the state was out yesterday. The Belmont unit enjoyed a hike in the country while the Port Atkinson and Jefferson companies drilled at Jefferson. Several of the Milwaukee companies took part in a strenuous drill at the State Fair Park. Porten men were overcome by the heat during the course of the afternoon.

NEW POSTAL REGULATIONS AS REGARDS MAGAZINES

Current magazines destined for soldiers or sailors must (1) be of very recent publication, (2) have the notice on the upper right hand corner required by the postmaster general, and (3) be destined for soldiers or sailors not yet sent overseas.

The postoffice department is burdened with magazines which do not come with the foregoing. While the intention of these regulations is to prevent the postoffice from being overburdened with magazines not yet sent overseas, yet bringing the same to the post office is a wasteful expenditure of money and energy. POSTMASTER.

Church People: Children of the Methodist Sunday school will enjoy their annual picnic at West Park tomorrow. A special luncheon will be served for the picnic grounds at 3:35 a. m. and a regular every hour after. Tickets will be good on any car.

We are paying the highest prices for Rags, Scrap Iron, Papers, Hides and all kinds of junk. We have two yards.

BELGIAN WOMAN IN AN APPEAL TO ALLIES

"Tell the Allies not to make a bad peace. Tell them to fight on until we are safe."

An aged Belgian woman serving a fifteen year sentence in a German prison, sent this message out by the Belgium Countess Goblet d'Avriella.

The countess has been a prisoner herself for a month when she was exchanged for an important German prisoner. Her account of life as a prisoner of the Germans in Brussels was told to American friends at the Hotel Petrograd, the W. C. A. House of Paris.

"Thirty Belgian women are shot by the Germans every month, an average of one a day," said the countess. "We are punished for everything. The heaviest penalty falls upon those who aid the men to escape from the Germans."

"The most trivial offenses of prisoners bring awful punishments. One thing for which we are continually under severe penalty is trying to communicate with the men in our army. Many and many a woman is serving from one to fifteen years in a German prison—prisons in Germany are unspacious—foul smelling—outlets for the wind. Multitudes of our women have not heard from their men since the war began—they do not know whether they still live, whether they were killed years ago, or are prisoners. The men know nothing about their wives, daughters and mothers left behind."

"We Belgians are very tired of war. But America's help has cheered us more than you can know. We have lived so long in the sound of cannon that when it dies down we miss it; we say, 'Are the Allies still fighting?' When the noise is the greatest we know that the bombardment is heavy and here we say: 'The Allies are fighting for us. Perhaps they will come today.'"

"That it is all tragedy in Belgium. Our courage and hopes have never wavered."

"We are very tired. We do want peace. We want our homes again and our men back so much so that we want all we want to be a free people. We beg you not to stop until we are again in possession of our own land."

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR GEN. RANDALL

Remains of Former Janesville Resident Who Served in Three Wars, Laid to Rest This Afternoon.

With full military honors, the remains of the late Major General George M. Randall, U. S. Army, were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery this afternoon. Services at the grave were in charge of the local Knights Templar of the Masons and were most beautiful and impressive.

The casket, from Company G, Eighth Regiment, Wisconsin State Guard, in charge of Sergeant Dixon, fired a final salute over the dead body. The casket was then placed by Bugler Cushing just as the casket was lowered to its final resting place.

The remains arrived in this city from Denver at three o'clock this afternoon and were taken immediately to the cemetery where services were held at the grave.

Major General George M. Randall died at his home in Denver, Friday at the age of seventy-seven years. Although born in Ohio, he called Janesville his home, his parents having moved here from Ohio and resided on Ruger avenue.

CALVIN HULL PAYS
"YOUR SHARE IS FAIR"

Calvin Hull, the Milton Junction merchant whose store front was daubed with yellow paint recently because he had not paid his portion of the "Your Share is Fair" tax, turned over the sum he was assessed, $27.01, on Saturday. It is also stated that he bought twenty dollars worth of Thrift Stamps at the Milton Junction post office the same day.

The Gazette is in receipt of a communication from one of Hull's relatives to the painting in which he tries to explain why he failed to make good his promise of a hundred dollars reward for the information as to who painted his store. The check was given to a Milton Junction officer but had a string attached that it must not be cashed until the man has been convicted. He after that created a sensation in Milton Junction and further developments are expected.

CAMPAIGN POSTPONED; BOY SCOUTS ARE URGED

Owing to the illness of A. P. Lovejoy, chairman of the Janesville committee of the War Savings Stamp campaign, the intensive drive which was to have opened this morning has been postponed.

However a great quantity of stamps are being sold and many of the country districts have already gone over the top. The town of Turtle reported this morning that it had gone over the top and was still going strong.

PHYSICALLY UNFIT MEN ARE EXAMINED

Local Board Examines One Third of Total Number of Men in Class Five—Men may Soon Be Called.

Twenty registrants, physically unqualified for general military service, were examined this morning by Dr. J. E. Pumber, examining physician of the local board. Those examined were all men in Class No. 5-G, so classified without any physical examinations being obvious. An order recently came from the provost marshal general to examine all of these physically unfit men.

For just what purpose these examinations were ordered is a question. It is presumed, however, that many of them, while not qualified to perform general military duties may be able to work in non-combatant positions and so it is probable that many will soon be called.

The Light in the Clearing

A TALE OF THE NORTH COUNTRY IN THE TIME OF SILAS WRIGHT.

By IRVING BACHELLER
Author of Eben Holden, Etc.

In the morning Aunt Deel put it in my hands. "I wonder what in the world he wrote there," said she. "We must keep it careful—aye, I'll put it in my trunk and give it to you when you go to Canton to school." "Has Mr. Wright gone?" I asked rather sadly. "Ayes, land o' meore! He went away long before daylight with a lot of packed meat in a pack basket—aye, for uncle is gone down to the village to see about the mortgage this afternoon, ayes!"

conversations came into my brain as I worked and were rehearsed in whispers.

"Why, Bart, you're a grand worker," my uncle would say in my fancy. "You're as good as a hired man." "Oh, that's nothing," I would answer modestly. "I want to be useful so you won't be sorry you took me and I'm going to study just as Mr. Wright did and be a great man if I can and help the poor people. I'm going to be a better scholar than Sally Dunkelberg, too."

What a day it was—the first of many like it. I never think of those days without saying to myself: "What a God's blessing a man like Silas Wright can be in the community in which his heart and soul are as an open book!"

As the evening came on I took a long look at my cords. The shed was nearly full of them. Four rules of syntax, also, had been carefully stored away in my brain. I said them over as I hurried down into the pasture with the old sheep and brought in the cows. I got through milking just as Uncle Peabody came. I saw with joy that his face was cheerful.

"Yip!" he shouted as he stopped his team at the barn door where Aunt Deel and I were standing. "We can't get much to worry about now. I've got the interest money right here in my pocket!"

We un hitched and went in to supper. I was hoping that Aunt Deel would speak of my work but she seemed not to think of it.

"Had a grand day," said Uncle Peabody as he sat down at the table and began to tell what Mr. Wright and Mr. Dunkelberg had said to him.

I, too, had had a grand day and probably my elevation was greater than his. I carried at the looking glass, being that Aunt Deel would give me a chance modestly to show my uncle what I had done. But the talk about interest and mortgages sent me to my room and I tried to whisper in his ear a hint that he had better go and look into the woodshed. He stopped me before I had begun by saying:

"Don't bother me now, Rub. I'll get that candy for you the next time I go to the village."

Candy! I was thinking of no such trivial matter as candy. He could not know how the idea shocked me in the exalted state of mind into which I had risen. He didn't know then of the spiritual change in me and how generous and great I was feeling and how noble and beautiful as I tried to find a way in which I had set my feet.

I went out on the porch and stood looking down with a sad countenance. Aunt Deel followed me.

"Why, Bart," she exclaimed, "you're too tired to eat—aye! Be ye sick?" I shook my head.

"Peabody," she called, "this boy has worked like a beaver every minute since you left—aye, he has! I never see anything to beat it—never! I want you to come right out into the woodshed and see what he's done—this minute—aye!"

"Why of all things!" my uncle exclaimed. "He's worked like a nigger, ain't he?"

There were tears in his eyes when he took my hand in his rough palm and squeezed it and said:

"Sometimes I wish ye was little again so I could take ye up in my arms and kiss ye just as I used to. Horace Dunkelberg says that you're the best-lookin' boy he ever see."

"Stop!" Aunt Deel exclaimed with a playful tap on his shoulder. "Why, ye mustn't go on like that." "Why, I'm tellin' just what he said," my uncle answered.

"I guess he only meant that Bart looked clean and decent—that's all—aye! He didn't mean that Bart was pure. Land sakes—no!"

I observed the note of warning in the look she gave my uncle.

"No, I suppose not," he answered, as he turned away with a smile and brushed one of his eyes with a rough finger.

I repeated the rules I had learned as we went to the table.

"That's the ideal!" said Uncle Peabody. "You keep on as you've started and every body'll milk into your pail!"

I kept on—not with the vigor of that first day with its new inspiration—but with growing strength and effectiveness. Nights and mornings and Saturdays I worked with a will and my book in my pocket or at the side of the field and was, I know, a help of some value on the farm. My scholarship improved rapidly and that year I went about as far as I could hope to go in the little school at Leonard's Corners.

I wouldn't wonder if of Kate was right about our boy, said Aunt Deel one day when she saw me with my book in the field.

I began to know then that of Kate had somehow been at work in my soul—consciously as I would now put it. I was trying to put truth into the prophecy. As I look at the whole matter these days I can see that Mr. Grimshaw himself was a help no less important to me, for it was a sharp spur with which he continued to prod us.

CHAPTER VII.
My Second Peril.

We always thank God for men like Purvis; we never thank them. They are without honor in their own time, but how they brighten the pages of the cheerfulness of the old countryside and broke up its natural reticence!

Mr. Franklin Purvis was our hired man—a Roman nose, a face so slim that it would command interest and attention in any company, and a serious look enhanced by a brilliant mustache and a retreating chin. At first and on account of his size I had no very high opinion of Mr. Purvis. That first evening after his arrival I sat with him on the porch surveying him inside and out.

"You don't look very stout," I said. "I ain't as big as some, but I'm all cristle from my head to my heels, inside an' out," he answered.

I surveyed him again as he sat looking at the ledges. He was not more than a head taller than I, but if he were "all cristle" he might be entitled to respect and I was glad to learn of his hidden resources—glad and a bit apprehensive as they began to develop.

"I'm as full of cristle as a goose's leg," he went on. "God never made a man who could do more damage when he lets go of himself an' do it faster. There ain't no use of talkin'."

There being no use of talking, our new hired man continued to talk while he listened with breathless interest and growing respect. He took a chew of tobacco and squinted his eyes and seemed to be studying the wooden rock ledges across the road as he went on.

"You'll find me wide awake, I guess. I ain't afraid of anything but lightning, no, sir—an' I can hurt hard an' do it rapid when I begin, but I can be just as harmless as a kitten. There ain't no man that can be more harmless when he wants to be an' there's any decent chance for it—none what."

somever! No, sir! I'd rather be harmless than not—a good deal."

This relieved, and was no doubt calculated to relieve, a feeling of insecurity which his talk had inspired. He blew out his breath and shifted his quid as he sat with his elbows resting on his knees and took another look at the ledges as if considering how much of his strength would be required to move them.

"Have you ever hurt anybody?" I asked.

"Several," he answered.

"Did you kill 'em?"

"No, I never let myself go too far. Bein' so stout, I have to be kind of careful."

After a moment's pause he went on: "A man threatened to lick me up to Seaver's lotter deck. You couldn't blame him. He didn't know me from a side of sole leather. He just thought I was one of them common, every-day cusses that folks use to lumber up on."

But he see his mistake in time. I tell ye God was good to him when he kept him away from me."

Aunt Deel called us to supper. "Let's go in an' squench our hunger," Mr. Purvis proposed as he rose and shut his jackknife.

I was very much impressed and called him "Mr. Purvis" after that. I enjoyed and believed many tales of adventure in which he had been the hero as we worked together in the field or stable. I told them to my aunt and uncle one evening, whereupon the latter said:

"He's a good man to work, but Jerusalem!"

He stopped. He always stopped at the brink of every such precipice. I had never heard him finish an uncompromising sentence.

THOROUGHBREDED NAGS ARE VALUED HIGHLY

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

New York, June 17.—Time was when lovers of horse flesh thought $25,000 a top price for thoroughbred nags, but the star runners of today are valued at twice the figure they would have brought in the open market a few years ago.

Several owners of crack thoroughbreds, notably Omar Khayyam, Cudgel and runners approaching their class, have placed prohibitive prices on them. Very recently Edward J. McLean, of Washington, offered Wilfred Viaw $75,000 for Omar Khayyam, and the offer was disposed of with a smile from Viaw. Later the Canadian racing magnate set a flat price of $200,000 on the namesake of the great port. Anyone can have him for that amount. Think of it!

Viaw's prohibitive price, indicated that he did not want to sell the great runner, and this after he had been beaten by Cudgel. As values in horseflesh go, Omar would be bringing a big price if he should be sold for $100,000 but that is practically the limit for any horse that ever champed a bit.

Hourless, recently retired to the stud, would not have been sold for $150,000, according to Sam Hildreth. Only last year Hourless was Omar's great rival, and he was considered by many critics the better horse of the two.

Cudgel, the latest sensation of the Eastern tracks, could not be weaned away from Commander Ross for a jockey less than $125,000, if he could be bought for that price, and he cost $100,000 even $30,000. Omar Khayyam was knocked down to Wilfred Viaw last season for $26,000. Yet within one short year the valuation placed on these nags has been tripled.

GERMAN PRISONERS ARE ENJOYING LIFE AT ROCKFORD CAMP

Camp Grant, Ill., June 17.—100 German interned prisoners of war arrived in camp today under heavy guard. They were transferred here from Fort McPherson, S. D., and were placed in the Divisional Guard House, where they will be quartered until their own drawn can complete a stockade. In the meantime they will be put to work on the huge open air boxing arena that it to have its initial opening Thursday July 4th. With their sailor suits and caps they are being made to look like sailors.

It is expected that the arena will be completed by the end of the week. The arena large as it may seem is to be finished in record time which will mean that the interned prisoners will address the "All Work, No Play."

In addition to the German prisoners, skilled mechanics and carpenters assembled early today on the open ground that is to be the foundation for the arena. Hammers and saws intermingled with the usual workman commands, were evident enough the work of the day.

Thousands of feet of lumber, a carload of nails, and other building supplies were unloaded yesterday, which is proof of the material for the hollow-circle boxing pavilion.

Built along the lines of an ancient Roman Coliseum the arena will resemble a monster bowl, with twelve gradually rising sections, and three bleachers with the fourth side the highest. The arena will be built on a hill at least 25,000 soldiers can be grouped with comfort and from which a perfect view can be had.

It is expected that at least 30,000 spectators will be present to witness the boxing program and dedication on Thursday July 4. The bouts are to be fought between soldiers from the First Depot Battalion, Carlington Heights, London, Ontario and picked men of the 84th Div.

The day will commence at 7 a. m. with a parade of 4,000 men. The day will be a day of great interest and for the benefit of the Overseas Athletic Fund of the 84th Division. The day is expected to leave for overseas about the first of August.

The list will include all men who are in the habit of hanging around pool rooms, bowling alleys, saloons and other public places. Chief Champion stated this morning that there are several men in this city ranging in age from sixteen to twenty years who have been loafing around and that it is these men that they are after.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old and I am engaged to a young man a year older than myself who has recently enlisted. He wanted to give me an engagement ring, but I would not let him and had him take out liberty bonds for me.

Instead, don't you think this will be more satisfactory than to have a diamond ring now that they are so very expensive?

BETTY K.
You idea was very patriotic. If every one did as much to increase the war funds we would win the war sooner. The bonds can be converted into a ring after the war and you will have the satisfaction of knowing when you do get it that the money which it cost helped to save lives and bring democracy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My brother doesn't write for weeks at a time and it worries me. What could we do to make him write oftener. We send him stamps, stationery and dainties.

PAUL R.
When you write to your brother enclose a stamped and addressed envelope. It seems a great deal easier to answer a letter when it isn't necessary to address and stamp for it. Tell your brother how your mother worries and that it will make her much happier if she hears from him more frequently. After you have told him that your mother worries, do not mention it again. If he hears about it too often it will seem like nagging and the suggestion will lose its effect.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I recently graduated from high school. There were so many dear friends that I wanted to see again that I decided to have a little sewing party on Saturday afternoon. All of the girls seemed pleased to accept my invitation except one and she said she hated to sew and never intended to do it again. I am going to have the party a week from Saturday and I don't know how many guests to count on. I would like to have twelve. Would you advise me not to count on her or to ask her if she is coming?

DOUBTFUL
Ask her if she intends to come. Do not urge her at all. She was rude to answer you the way she did.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fourteen years old and have graduated from the eighth grade. When we have class parties the boys and girls like to play postoffice. I am the only girl who will not play and the boys all make fun of me for not playing, and so do the girls. What shall I do?

GRADUATE
Let the boys and girls make fun of you. The thought that you have better judgement and more self-control than you have ought to content you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are girl chums fourteen years old. Do you think it all right for us to dress alike? AIDRA M. AND LUCY H.
It is all right for you to dress alike, never like to see two girls do it. However, girls should use their individuality in selecting clothes and make their clothes express their own personalities and not a joint personality.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a very good friend going to war. What should I do for him? I would like to give him something he would appreciate. I. P.
You might give him a pad of writing paper and pencils. The two are put up in convenient and attractive kit form. Most stationery stores handle these kits now.

I Told You So.
There is a tradition, is there not that "I told you so" is a very objectionable thing to say or to infer.

There is also a tradition that women are more apt to be guilty thereof than men.

I have acquired an idea recently whence and why those traditions arose.

A group of us were talking the other day on the all absorbing subject of domestic help. Four women had told of their difficulties and the difficulties of neighbors and friends in getting the same, and the large wages they had had to pay.

She Didn't Dare To Tell Him Herself.

"Well," sighed one woman who had been listening to this testimony, "let my husband hear all this. Why we were speaking about maids the other night and he said this talk about their being so hard to get, and about their getting such high wages."

Plainly if a woman insists on bringing forward proof that her husband (or any man) was not justified in pooh poohing her arguments or her point of view, that is saying "I told you so" and is a most disagreeable thing to do.
